Dear George:

Since I borrowed ten dollars from Mr. DeCompte for registration I'll not have another pay day before the middle of March. I had intended to wait until then before buying the rest of my books, but I can clearly see now that by that time I would be swamped with work to such an extent that I couldn't hope to make a decent grade for this semester. Subsequently, I'd like to get five dollars from you if you could possibly spare it. This semester and summer will be my only chance of running my average up high enough to graduate with honors. That would mean even more to me now than it did in high school. L.H.H.
